

Princeton Carries Odds Over Harvard---Georgetown Prepares for Aggies Now

FAVOR PRINCETON TO DEFEAT HARVARD IN SATURDAY'S CONTEST

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

When the Princeton Tigers line up against the sons of John Harvard in the jungle Saturday the first so-called big game of the 1915 season will be on. All dope favors Princeton to win, but Harvard is by no means weak, despite that defeat at the hands and feet of the Ithacans.

Princeton's principal attraction in the early games of the season was its defensive play. Coach Rush seemed to have spent almost all his time in instructing his players in defensive tactics. He was highly successful, too, and such heavy, aggressive eleven as Georgetown, Rutgers, Syracuse, and Lafayette found it well nigh impossible to gain consistently against the Tigers. However, it was not until Syracuse had been beaten by a lone field goal that Rush began strengthening his offense. Lafayette was the first to test it, being humbled 40 to 3. Dartmouth found the Tigers strong at line plunging, and at running the ends. With five regulars out of the line-up, Princeton had an easy time defeating Williams 27 to 0. All the practice this week has been in defensive play, Rush evidently being contented with his attack. Harvard will test that Saturday.

HARVARD HAS RAGGED SEASON.

This has been a most ragged season for the Crimson. Losing so many stars from the 1914 eleven forced Coach Haughton to make almost a new organization. The usual results have appeared. The Massachusetts Aggies, coached by Arthur Briles, an old Yale star, were defeated by a single touchdown on a fumble in the last five minutes of play. Carleton's weak team was easily beaten, but it was found too much of a task to score a touchdown against Virginia. Eddie Mahan's three field goals made up the nine points scored against the Charlottesville contingent. Then came Cornell's triumph, 10 to 0, and Harvard's cup of woe seemed filled to overflowing. Last week Penn State, outplaying the Crimson, was defeated, 12 to 0, but there was little in that victory to console the followers of Haughton's eleven.

One thing is certain, Harvard has no great team this season. The line seems to be strongest, but with weaknesses here and there in it. Indeed, many excellent judges believe that Princeton has a stronger line. Harvard's backfield is fair, even with Mahan in the game. The Harvard captain seems to be suffering from the responsibilities of leadership and practically lost the Cornell game himself. Princeton has wonderful line-plungers in Law and Dickerman, the best runner in the East, a fast and a most slippery runner and perfect field goal kicker in Dave Tibbitt. From fake kick formations, Princeton is well-nigh invincible, either driving into the line or skirting the ends. The Tigers have a most varied attack and those who have seen both eleven in action believe that Harvard will lose.

Georgetown now has three games to play before the end of the 1915 football season at the Hilltop. Coach "Exquisite" witnessed the triumph of Jack Hegarty's team at Annapolis last Saturday and came back with serious thoughts in his head.

The Aggies are as big as Georgetown, says Exquisite. They know football, have good forward passes, a fair punter and plenty of speed. We'll have to hustle to win from them.

The North Carolina Aggies come to Georgetown on the 15th and will be pitted to win. Whether or not they will succeed remains to be seen. Georgetown has an exceptional eleven this year and the Aggies may find it a difficult job to tie the Hilltoppers, as was the case last season.

Mr. St. Mary's may be cut off the football schedule of Catholic University for 1916. The Mountaineers having canceled Saturday's game at Brookland, leaving injuries. Mr. St. Mary's has now pulled off two games with C. U. Manager Kavanaugh, of the Brookland team, is seeking to obtain a substitute contest, but he has so little time in which to get that it would not be surprising if he failed.

Georgetown announces today that it makes no claim to the "Catholic championship." On the other hand it does claim the " Jesuit championship of the East," having defeated Fordham, which has already won from Holy Cross, Boston College, another Jesuit institution, and lost to Fordham, but the Boston eleven is not very strong this year, and is hardly in the reckoning.

"Football enthusiasts," says Parkes, "may confidently rely upon the fact that no unfair football legislation will pass Congress as at present constituted in the United States Senate. In the United States Senate, the late Blair Lee, an old Princeton forward, in the house is P. A. Porter, one of the early football fathers and players at Yale. With him is Clarence Miller, the founder of football at the University of Minnesota, and also James W. Good, who founded football at Case College.

"In the seat of the Princeton Assistant Attorney General sits S. L. Thompson, once an end rush at Princeton, and on the Interstate Commerce Commission is James S. Harlan, a famous forward at Princeton thirty years ago.

"Speaking of Princeton and politics, how about the President? Woodrow Wilson, in 1878, was a member of the board of coaches at Princeton. In those days they called it a board of directors, as the word coach had not then been imported from England, where it originally designated a private tutor at the universities.

"Not only was Woodrow Wilson a member of that old board, but served as its secretary and participated in the field coaching which turned out a team that defeated both Harvard and Yale. In 1884 President Wilson was a field coach at Wesleyan, and in 1885 very actively assisted in the field work at Princeton. His Wesleyan team was the first Wesleyan eleven to score on Yale, and until 1911 also the last."

Judging from the performance of the present season to date, Catholic University should complete a most successful schedule. Never before has the squad shown such a healthy spirit, never before has it had such good coaching, and never before has its future been so bright. The victories over Villanova, conqueror of the Army, and Delaware, Brooklanders are more than joyful of finishing the year with a high ranking.

Washington and Lee, after battling hard to a 7 to 7 tie, will take on more sturdy foemen a week from Saturday at Hixson. Cornell has met but one really powerful opponent Harvard, but the "Big Red" team made good at Cambridge and will carry the odds against "Joeger" Elcock's eleven. Cornell is easily the best team representing it in years, and is going down to Philadelphia this fall, intent on breaking all records. However, next Saturday Michigan must be played at Ann Arbor, and the Wolverines may take a lot out of the Thacans before the W. C. L. contest. If it should happen that Elcock's eleven should be victorious over Cornell, a most serious middle would eventuate in deciding the 1915

EXPECT HIM TO STAR AGAINST CRIMSON

Here you see "SCOTTY" McLEAN, Princeton's giant left tackle, who is expected to prove a rallying point in the Tiger line Saturday. McLean's stellar performances all season have stamped him as all-America timber and, if he holds up to his reputation against Harvard, he may win the desired honors.

championship. A Harvard victory over Princeton would throw all the expert dope artists into the ash heap.

Twenty-five thousand spectators are expected to witness the Pittsburgh-Washington and Jefferson game at Pittsburgh Saturday. Neither eleven has been beaten this year. Pittsburgh has won from Navy and Pennsylvania, while W. and J. has triumphed over Yale.

Dartmouth should easily win from Pennsylvania at Boston Saturday. The Quakers have gone from bad to worse this year. Penn State won from the Penn eleven, 12 to 3. Pittsburgh won, 14 to 7, and Lafayette humbled the Red and Blue, 11 to 0, last Saturday. Navy tied Dickinson's team, 7 to 7, before going down before North Carolina A. and M. Penn has scored 37 points while 57 have been scored against her. Dartmouth has lost only to Princeton, scoring 19 points to 27 for the enemy. The Harvardians expect to run up a huge score over the Quakers and all dope favors them. By the way, Pennsylvania makes her first appearance in Boston in years. Not since 1904 has a Pennsylvania eleven played in the Hub. That, coupled with the great popularity of Dartmouth, should bring out a large crowd to Fenway Park when these two varsity teams get together Saturday.

Yale Asks Princeton And Harvard to Confer

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—A general revision of athletic eligibility rules is foreshadowed by the appointment of a Yale committee with powers to meet similar committees from Harvard and Princeton, looking to unify such matters both in principle and practice.

The members of the committee appointed to represent Yale in the revision of the rules is composed of R. N. Corwin, '15, chairman of the Yale Athletic Association; Fred W. Allen, '16, representing rowing; George W. Case, '16, representing baseball; John W. Field, '17, representing football; and George Family Day, '17, treasurer of the Yale Athletic Association. What the action of the Yale authorities would be on the matter of the reinstatement of the five athletes following a revision of the rules is doubtful. The only statement relative to reinstatement was made by Prof. Corwin, who said in his letter to Harvard and Princeton that Yale could not reinstate the athletes while the Yale eligibility rules are in their present form.

PRINCETON DOUBTS HAVING ADVANTAGE

Poor Work, Both On Offense and Defense, of Varsity Chills All Hopes.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—The Tigers' poor work this week, both on offense and defense, has taken much of the confidence from the students and now Harvard is credited with having an excellent chance of winning Saturday's contest here.

The only place in doubt is left end, where Lambertson is giving Higley a going fight for the honors. Coach Rush will not make a selection until Saturday morning. Princeton is expected to line up as follows against Harvard:

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4.—Tommy Enright is not expected to start against Princeton, but he is ready to play part of the game. He has almost completely recovered from his injuries and will be first substitute to Bole.

Expect Columbia to Bar George Brickley

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Columbia will today decide whether or not to bar George Brickley, Trinity's fullback, on the grounds of professionalism. If Trinity insists on using Brickley, it is possible that Columbia will cancel the game scheduled for November 11 at South Field rather than risk losing a number of track athletes. The athletic committee has ratified the game to be played November 20 between Columbia and New York University.

Jones May Select You To Referee His Clash

Tommy Lowe Offers to Let Opponent Pick Official Out From All At Ringside At Ardmore—Local Boxer Finds Himself Much Overweight.

If you go to Ardmore to see the Tommy Lowe-Kid Jones return match for the Southern lightweight championship, you may wind up by acting as the third man in the ring. Tommy Lowe is willing to have Jones select any spectator to act as referee. So, if you're there, Jones may cast his eagle eye upon you and you will immediately be invited to take off your coat, turn up your trousers, and dash around the ring.

"Jones says he doesn't want O'Connor to act as referee," explains Lowe. "Well, it's all the same to me. I don't want a sporting editor to be the official third man in the ring. That'll suit me, only I haven't found any sporting editor who wants the job. Let Jones look around at the crowd and select any spectator for the job. I'll be satisfied no matter who he picks out. The fans who go out to the club know enough about boxing to be able to provide at least one man for this duty of refereeing my bout with Jones. Lowe has found himself considerably over weight and has begun the hardest kind of work to get into trim for his battle with Jones. Many spectators with nothing but a good opinion of Jones, entitled to at least a draw with Lowe, while others severely criticized Pat O'Connor for not giving Jones the honors. As it was, Lowe was given the decision, Jones' manager complained, and now he refuses to allow O'Connor to decide the bout.

As practice for his appearance here, Willie Jones will box ten rounds Saturday night in New York with the veteran lightweight, "Harlem Tommy" Murphy. Then he will come right down to Washington to complete his training stunts before meeting Lowe on November 9 at Ardmore.

Kid Greck's many Washington friends are looking for all wagers that Harry Glenn, of Baltimore, will win the semi-final scrap of eight rounds. Greck has a strong feeling here, and they are ready to back him to a man. The boy has been in training for several weeks, and expects to win by the sleep route. Rivalry between Greck and Young Thomas is at fever heat, and Greck wants to do more than Thomas did to Glenn.
